Canning Town Hall, a two-storey public building with a hall and stage to the rear, built in brick with a painted render finish, has cultural heritage significance for the following reasons:

the place is highly valued by the local community for its use as a major civic building representing the history and development of the Canning area;

it has landmark qualities that contribute towards the community's sense of place; and, the place has been an important community focal point for civic and social activities, and was used as a cinema for many years.
